

Haunting Me

Words and music by: Nicole (N.Cole)

Performed by: Nicole (N.Cole)

Copyright 2006

All rights reserved

I taste the ghost of your kiss on my lips
I imagine the trace of your sweet scent as it lingers of over this

And I'm not one to pine or shelter all the tears I've long since dried For, all the love I have resigned lies in moors of empty ruins too bleak to mind

But I've been taken by you
By the mystery abounding in your eyes
Everything that lives and breaths you washes over me like some pretentious sigh These thoughts of you are haunting me, haunting me, haunting me

You've invaded every inch of me, and deep It's like some kind of delicious plague that started with a senseless dream

And I'm not one to fall
So far from home, so deep with cost How did you penetrate these walls that I have grown to sustain the boldest of calls?

And leave me taken by you
by the mystery abounding in your eyes
Everything that lives and breaths you
washes over me like some pretentious sigh
These thoughts of you are
haunting me, haunting me, haunting me

Tell me, how you do that? Tell me how you do that to me?

You're haunting me, haunting me, haunting me