I see your face

I hear you speak my name

I feel this heart, but I don't know its place

I'm in a maze, in my desperate hour

And there's no space or time that can heal this craze

You say I need to remember

But I'm lost in this whirlwind of surrender

You say I need to remember

But your words can only offer me their splendor

You say I need to remember

But I can't recall what is gone and lost to me forever

Now, all your love

Echo's in some one else's world

And every moment she breathes to recapture it

What's hers is mine and what's yours is still mine according to you. Why is it I can shake you?
